All about Europe

Markets June was a mixed month for the High Yield market, as most sectors took a breather and returned a month of coupon. However, the energy sector delivered a slightly negative return, as spread volatility followed the oil price volatility. The oil price dropped by more than 10% during the first 20 days of the month but ended down only 2% by the end of the month.

European financials were back in the headlines, as we saw no less than three banks (Banco Popular in Spain and Veneto Banca & Banca Popolare di Vicenza in Italy) ceasing to exist after the ECB deemed the banks were “failing or likely to fail”. None of the banks were deemed to have significant adverse impact on the stability of the European financial system. Therefore, the task of winding down the banks, were turned to the national authorities leaving national member-state politics as a dominant feature in bank interventions instead of the European resolution system.

President of the European Central Bank, Mario Draghi, took the market by surprise at the end of June by delivering a rather hawkish speech scheduling a more hasty normalization of monetary policy than previously anticipated. Especially long, European bonds sold off as a reaction and the Euro rallied vis-à-vis the US Dollar and interest rate duration was noticed in the European BB-rated bonds.

Energy bonds holds as oil drops

The Portfolio In the month of June, no specific sector stood out as the main contributor to the fund return. All sectors contributed around +/- 2 bps with the materials sector as the largest positive 2 bps contributor and telecommunications as the largest negative -2bps contributor.

On an issuer level, the return pattern was the same, all but 2 issuers contributed between -1bps and 2 bps. Two issuers delivered a negative return of 5 bps for the month. First, the previous month's top performer drilling in Kurdistan lost 5 bps on no significant news flow except from the decrease in the oil price. Secondly, a position in a Qatar based telecommunications company with an investment grade rating lost 5 bps following the political turmoil in the region.

During the month, we sold out of the lowest yielding Investment Grade positions. On the High Yield exposures, we have both sold out of the low yielding positions and rebalanced the weight in higher yielding positions. Overall, we have managed to increase the yield to worst in local terms by around 30 bps.
